Dismiss Plaintiff Lars Jensen’s (“Dr. Jensen”) First Amended Complaint. ECF No. 21. Dr. Jensen

26

filed a response in opposition to the motion, in which he requested oral argument (ECF No. 33), and the Administrators replied (ECF No. 34). Also before the Court is Dr. Jensen’s Motion to

27

28

Amend Response in Opposition to the Administrators’ motion to dismiss. ECF No. 44. The 1 Administrators filed a response in opposition (ECF No. 45) and Dr. Jensen replied (ECF No. 46).

2 In both his motion to amend and reply in support of the motion to amend, Dr. Jensen requested
3 oral argument. ECF Nos. 44, 46. The Court denies Dr. Jensen’s requests for oral argument.
4 For the reasons articulated below, the Court denies Dr. Jensen’s motion to amend and grants the 5 Administrators’ motion to dismiss.

6 I. BACKGROUND

7 This matter primarily involves alleged violations of civil rights concerning higher 8 education employment at Truckee Meadows Community College (“TMCC”) and, by extension, 9 the Nevada System of Higher Education (“NSHE”). Dr. Jensen is a Community College Professor 10 in the Math and Physical Sciences Division of TMCC’s Mathematics Department. ECF No. 1 at 11 4. Natalie Brown is the Executive Director of the Advisement and Transfer Center at TMCC
12 (“Dr. Brown”); Julie Ellsworth was the Dean of Sciences at TMCC at all relevant times to this 13 action (“Dr. Ellsworth”); Anne Flesher is the Dean of Math and Physical Sciences at TMCC
14 (“Dean Flesher”); Karin Hilgerson is the President of TMCC (“President Hilgerson”); Marie
15 Murgolo was the Vice President of Academic Affairs at TMCC at all relevant times to this action
16 (“Dr. Murgolo”); and Melody Rose is the Chancellor of NSHE (“Chancellor Rose”). . at 4–6.

17 Generally, the First Amended Complaint alleges that the Administrators sought to 18 discipline, retaliate, and punish Dr. Jensen after he voiced concerns about the lowering of 19 curriculum standards and the deterioration of shared governance at TMCC. ECF . at 2–6. TMCC 20 hired Dr. Jensen on January 16, 1996, and he tenured on July 1, 1999. . at 6. Dr. Jensen has 21 taught varying levels of mathematic courses during this time which range from algebra to calculus
22 to statistics to college physics. . Dr. Jensen contends that throughout his employment, TMCC 23 has continually altered its standards to make it easier for students to complete math courses and 24 ignored internal procedures relating to shared governance. . at 6, 7. Dr. Jensen admits he has 25 consistently voiced his concerns to TMCC on these two issues in different ways which include 26 various email communications and a handout he distributed at a function. . at 7–9.

1 grievances in response to the incidents with Dr. Ellsworth, but on November 24, 2020, Chancellor
2 Rose denied Dr. Jensen’s grievances. . at 12.

3 Along similar lines, Dr. Jensen alleges that Dean Flesher cited minor issues as her 4 justification for changing Dr. Jensen’s annual performance review from a recommended
5 “Excellent” to “Unsatisfactory.” . at 12. Dr. Jensen also claims that Dean Flesher applied criteria
6 to his annual performance review that was not equally applied to other annual performance
7 reviews. . Dr. Jensen filed one grievance related to the incident with Dean Flesher and on July 8 27, 2021, Chancellor Rose denied the grievance. . at 12, 13.

9 On June 2, 2021, Dean Flesher wrote a letter to President Hilgersom notifying her that Dr.
10 Jensen had received two consecutive “Unsatisfactory” annual performance evaluations. . at 13.

11 Around June 16, 2021, President Hilgersom appointed Dr. Brown to investigate Dr. Jensen for a 12 disciplinary hearing.<sup>3</sup> . at 13. Dr. Brown’s investigation took place over the summer with faculty 13 and included interviews with Dr. Ellsworth and Dean Flesher. . Dr. Jensen claims that the 14 investigation was conducted in a fair and equitable manner. (s)-1 (t)-7 ( t)-2 dell therce1 (he)-2 (i)-2-2 (s) un-1 (t)-2 (i)l

1 Dr. Jensen argues that the pattern of actions taken by the Administrators demonstrates a 2 concerted effort to punish and retaliate against him for his handout distribution at the Math
3 Summit, and his criticism of the deterioration of shared governance at TMCC. . at 15. Dr. Jensen
4 further claims that the Administrators' actions caused a deprivation of his rights and proximately
5 caused economic and emotional damages. . at 16. Dr. Jensen's First Amended Complaint alleges 6 seven causes of action: (1) First Amendment Retaliation under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, against all the 7 Administrators in their official capacities; (2) First Amendment Retaliation under 42 U.S.C.
8 § 1983, against all the Administrators in their individual capacities; (3) Violation of the Nevada
9 Constitution, Article I § 9, against all the Administrators; (4) Violation of Procedural Due Process
10 Rights under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, against Dr. Brown, President Hilgersom, and Dean Flesher; (5) 11 Violation of the Nevada Constitution, Article I § 8, against Dr. Brown, President Hilgersom, and 12 Dean Flesher; (6) Violation of the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause under 42
13 U.S.C. § 1983, against all the Administrators; and (7) Declaratory Relief under 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201, 14 ., against all the Administrators. . at 19–24. The Administrators filed a motion to dismiss 15 Dr. Jensen's First Amended Complaint. ECF No. 21. The motion is addressed below.

1 To sufficiently allege a claim under Rule 8(a)(2), viewed within the context of a 2 Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, a complaint must “contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as 3 true, to ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.’” (quoting , 550 U.S. at 4 570). A claim has facial plausibility when the pleaded factual content allows the court to draw the 5 reasonable inference, based on the court’s judicial experience and common sense, that the 6 defendant is liable for the alleged misconduct. at 678–79 (stating that “[t]he plausibility 7 standard is not akin to a probability requirement, but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that 8 a defendant has acted unlawfully. Where a complaint pleads facts that are merely consistent with 9 a defendant’s liability, it stops short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement
10 to relief.” (internal quotations and citations omitted)). Further, in reviewing a motion to dismiss, 11 the court accepts the factual allegations in the complaint as true. However, bare assertions in a 12 complaint amounting “to nothing more than a formulaic recitation of the elements of a . . . claim .
13 . . . are not entitled to an assumption of truth.” , 572 F.3d 962, 969 (9th 14 Cir. 2009) (quoting , 556 U.S. at 698) (internal quotation marks omitted). The court discounts 15 these allegations because “they do nothing more than state a legal conclusion—even if that 16 conclusion is cast in the form of a factual allegation.” “In sum, for a complaint to survive a 17 motion to dismiss, the non-conclusory ‘factual content,’ and reasonable inferences from that 18 content, must be plausibly suggestive of a claim entitling the plaintiff to relief.” .

19 “Although generally the scope of review on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim constitutional or statutory rights.” , 616 F.3d at 967–68 (citation omitted) (emphasis original). Here, Dr. Jensen argues that the exception should apply because he seeks “prospective relief” from the Administrators in their official capacities. EC1 0 ,89.689.64 12ausEC1 0 ,89.689.64 12

1           The only relief specifically labeled as “prospective” by Dr. Jensen in the First Amended 2 Complaint is some of the relief he seeks from the Administrators in their official capacities in 3 conjunction with his first cause of action.     ECF No. 8 at 19. Dr. Jensen describes this relief as 4 “relief from defendants for prospective compensation from the date of judgment for salary 5 adjustments he would have received had he not received the unlawful performance reviews” and 6 “prospective relief against the defendants acting in their official capacities for full expungement 7 of all negative personal files, return of his 2019-2020 annual performance evaluation to ‘excellent’, 8 and return of his 2020-2021 annual performance evaluation to ‘excellent.’” ECF No. 8 at 19.
9 Although Dr. Jensen claims to seek “prospective relief” as to trigger the exception, the specifics 10 of his two requests reveal that he seeks retrospective relief to remedy a past violation of federal 11 law. Essentially, Dr. Jensen requests (1) monetary compensation for lost salary, and (2) retroactive 12 expungement and restoration of past performance reviews. Such requests more closely resemble 13 recovery of lost wages than true prospective relief addressing ongoing violations. Just because 14 relief is characterized as “prospective” does not render true.                             , 902 F.2d 1395, 15 1399 (9th Cir. 1990) (“[s]imply asking for injunctive relief and not damages does not clear the 16 path for a suit.”).

17           Because the Ninth Circuit has expressly held that the Eleventh Amendment “bars suits 18 against state officials in their official capacities when the relief sought is retrospective or 19 compensatory in nature,”                             ., 45 F.3d 333, 338 (9th Cir. 1995), the Court
20 finds that the narrow exception to Eleventh Amendment immunity does not apply here.

21           , 478 U.S. at 280 (concluding plaintiff’s request for prospective relief was “essentially 22 equivalent” to a one-time restoration of lost trust corpus);

For these reasons, the Court finds that the Administrators are immune from suit in their official capacities under the Eleventh Amendment. The Court also finds the narrow “prospective

1 F.3d at 968. More specifically, whether qualified immunity applies depends on two distinct 2 inquiries: “(1) whether, taken in the light most favorable to the party asserting the injury, the facts
3 alleged show the officer’s conduct violated a constitutional right; and (2) if so, whether the right
4 was clearly established in light of the specific context of the case.” . (citation omitted). “Courts

., 44 F.4th 867, 888 (9th Cir. 2022) (concluding that plaintiff failed to clearly establish the relevant constitutional right because it was described “at too high a level of generality” and, as such, “avoids the crucial question whether the official acted reasonably in the particular circumstances that he or she faced.” (citation omitted)).

Dr. Jensen “must point to prior case law that articulates a constitutional rule specific enough to alert” the officials alleged of misconduct “that their particular conduct was unlawful.”

23 F.4th 863, 869 (9th Cir. 2022) (quotation and citation omitted). The Court is unpersuaded by Dr. Jensen’s argument that citing clearly established the right at issue. In , the Ninth Circuit applied the general rule established in , 547 U.S. 410 (2006), to speech as academic teaching and writing for the first time.<sup>8</sup> , 746 F.3d at 417. concluded that a professor’s academic teaching and writing may be an exception to ’s general rule, but ultimately held that the defendants were entitled to qualified immunity because the plaintiff had not shown that “the contours of the right” were so “sufficiently clear” that “every reasonable official would have understood” their conduct violated that right. . at 417–18. In other words, the only case Dr Jensen cites to clearly establish and particularize the alleged right at issue in the present case is a case in which the Ninth Circuit concluded that right was not clearly established. . Any argument Dr. Jensen poses that he included to invoke the academic writing and teaching exception is unavailing. Not once does Dr. Jensen reference the exception in the First Amended Complaint. As pled, Dr. Jensen’s First Amended Complaint fails to make the contours of the right sufficiently clear so that every reasonable official under these circumstances would understand their conduct violated the right.

For these reasons, the Court finds that Dr. Jensen has failed to clearly establish the alleged right at issue; he defines the right too generally and fails to provide case law that clearly establishes the contours of the specific right particularized to this case. , 583 U.S. 48, 63 (2018) (“[i]t is not enough that the [right] is suggested by then-existing precedent.”). The f

1 Administrators, as individuals, are afforded qualified immunity as to Dr. Jensen’s second cause of 2 action. Accordingly, the Court dismisses this cause of action.

3 2. The Court dismisses Dr. Jensen’s fourth cause of action against Dr. Brown, 4 President Hilgersom, and Dean Flesher as individuals on the basis of 5 qualified immunity because the alleged facts do not show their conduct 6 violated the Due Process Clause.

7 Listed as the fourth cause of action in the First Amended Complaint, Dr. Jensen alleges 8 that Dr. Brown, President Hilgersom, and Dean Flesher violated his procedural due process rights
9 under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. ECF No. 8 at 16. In their motion to dismiss, Dr. Brown, President
10 Hilgersom, and Dean Flesher argue that this claim should be dismissed based on qualified 11 immunity because Dr. Jensen fails to provide facts that show their conduct violated a constitutional 12 right. ECF No. 21 at 21, 22. In response, Dr. Jensen argues that he adequately pled the 13 Administrators denied him procedural due process. ECF No. 33 at 17–19.

14 The parties agree that a “section 1983 claim based upon procedural due process ... has three 15 elements: (1) a liberty or property interest protected by the Constitution; (2) a deprivation of the 16 interest by the government; (3) lack of process.” _____, 22 F.4th 1058, 1066 (9th 17 Cir. 2022) (quoting _____, 995 F.2d 898, 904 (9th Cir. 1993)).
18 Combining the first two elements, the “procedural due process rights of the Fourteenth 19 Amendment apply only when there is a deprivation of a constitutionally protected liberty or 20 property interest.” _____, 197 F.3d 367, 373 (9th Cir. 1999) (citing 21 _____, 408 U.S. 564, 569–70 (1972)). Dr. Jensen expressly claims three 22 protected liberty interests
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 As to a protected liberty interest in avoiding termination, a government employee generally 2 has a constitutionally protected property interest in continued employment. , 995 F.2d at 3 904. Here, the only inference that can be made from the facts alleged is that Dr. Jensen avoided 4 termination and that he was never dismissed by TMCC. In fact, Dr. Jensen admits he is still, and 5 was at all relevant times, employed as a professor by TMCC. ECF No. 8 at 4. There is no light in 6 which the Court may view the First Amended Complaint as plausibly alleging a deprivation of his 7 protected liberty interest in employment as a government employee because he remains a 8 government employee. Any argument that Dr. Brown, President Hilgersom, and Dean Flesher
9 deprived him of an employment related interest protected by the Due Process Clause is plainly 10 unsupported.

11 As to protected liberty interests in his good name, reputation, honor, and integrity, harm to 12 one's reputation alone is not considered a liberty or property interest guaranteed against state 13 deprivation without due process of law. , 424 U.S. 693, 712 (1976). In , the 14 plaintiff claimed when officials disseminated flyers to merchants identifying him as an "active 15 shoplifter" with a photo, the police deprived him of protected interests in his reputation. . at 695–
16 97. The Supreme Court reversed the court of appeals and held that the plaintiff did not state a claim 17 for violation of his procedural due process rights because, without more, reputational damage does 18 not deprive a person of any liberty or property interests protected by the Due Process Clause. .
19 at 711–12. Again, Dr. Jensen was not terminated so there is nothing more here than reputational
20 damage. Without more, these are not damages that implicate the type of liberty or property interests 21 protected by the Due Process Clause.

22 As to a protected liberty interest in future employment opportunities, there is a protected 23 liberty interest that "encompasses an individual's freedom to work and earn a living." , 24 995 F.2d at 907. "[W]hen the government dismisses an individual for reasons that might seriously 25 damage his standing in the community, he is entitled to notice and a hearing to clear his name."
26 . (quotation omitted). "To implicate constitutional liberty interests, however, the reasons for 27 dismissal must be sufficiently serious to 'stigmatize' or otherwise burden the individual so that he 28 is not able to take advantage of other employment opportunities." . (quoting
